Consumption of Tobacco.

The universality of the use of tobacco is once more emphasized by the tables showing the consumption of the commodity in many countries, just published by the department of Commerce and Labor. Despite edicts, ukases, counterbiasts, ser-mons, tracts and proclamations. My Lady Nicotine has not been deposed. Long ago an English writer lamented that the "new and strange habit" had been acquired with a rapidity to which the history of no other luxury afforded a parallel. Rated among the luxuries, tobacco is an easy mark for the taxgatherer, and yields a tremendous revenue to the treasury of every nation. The anti-tobacco propa-ganda remains appalled by the bewilder-ing number of the devotees of the weed and the billions of dollars that go up an-nually in the world in tobacco smoke.

nually in the world in tobacco smoke.

It requires nearly half a billion pounds of tobacco to meet the consumption of a single year in the United States. If this huge consumption were equally distributed among the entire population, every person would dispose of five and a half pounds of the product annually. Eliminating those who are under 15, constituting a third of the population, the per capita consumption would be about 16 pounds No census report has undertaken to ex-hibit what is the per capita consumption among the actual users of tobacco.

The statistics place Belgium in the first place with respect to the per capita consumption. The United States is a close second. No other countries can be regarded as rivals of Belgium and the United States in devotion to the tobacco babit. The Belgians are because habit. The Belgians are hopeless smok-ers. Americans are the most versatile The varieties of cigars, smoking and chewing tobacco and snuff thrown on the market here ever year are

In the production of tobacco the United States outruns all competitors. It is estimated that this country grows yearly one-half of the world's supply. There was an increase of nearly 60 per cent, in the area devoted to the tobacco crop from 1890 to 1900. The total value of our cco manufacturers in 1900 was $283,076,-The revenue derived by the federal government the last year from tobacc was $65,832,102, greater than that derived by any other country from this source save by France, whose total gross revemue from tobacco—a government monoply—was $81,063,000. It is not disclosed whether the customs and excise taxes on tobacco have had any effect upon the per capita consumption of the article in the capita consumption of the article in the United States. In Great Britain the per capita consumption, 1.95 pounds, is low. This is attributed to the high duties, the average rate per pound being five times as high as in the United States.

The theory that the smoker will smoke to the same extent, no matter how much the cost of his favorite tobacco may be increased by a customs or an excise tax, seems to be set aside in the case of the English. One of the deductions of the American statisticians is that, on the whole, the countries with the highest taxation show the lowest consumption, certainly a diminished consumption of the more expensive grades of tobacco.

News Service Among Savages.

"Many explorers have commented on the speed with which news travels among savage tribes," says Amateur Work, "A curious observation as to a possible solution of the problem of their methods has been made by Rev. A. Rideout, who, as a missionary among the Basutos, has noticed their method of sending messages from village to village by means of a signal drum or gourd. This gourd, covered with the dried and stretched skin of a kid, gives out a sound which travels and kid, gives out a sound which travels and can be heard at distances of from five to eight miles. The transmission and reception of messages on these drums is intrusted to special corps of signaliers, some one of whom is always on duty, and who beat on the message in what is practically a Morse alphabet. On hearing the message, says Mr. Ridgout, the ing the message, says Mr. Rideout, 'the signaller can always tell whether it is for his chief or for some distant village, and delivers it verbally or sends its on accordingly, and it is thus carried on with surprising rapidity from one village to another till it reaches its destination. King Lerothodi granted me the privilege of sending measures. of sending messages to our missionary workers by his great telegraph system. and never have I known a message sent by it to fall to reach the person for whom it was intended in its proper form. All that work took place in the Boer war, victories and reverses in the Transval and Orange Free State were known to us by going-line message house before gourd-line message hours before the news ever reached us by field telegraph. The natives guarded the secret of their code carefully. To my knowledge, messages have been sent a thousand miles by means of it."

Bad Back is Always Worse in the Morning. Brattleboro People are Finding Relief. A back that aches all day and causes discomfort at night is usually worse in the morning. Makes you feel as if you hadn't slept at all. Can't cure a bad back until you cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills curs sick kidneys-make you feel better, work better, rest better and sleep better.

Permanent cures in Brattleboro prove the merit of Doan's. Mrs. A. W. Larson, of 7 Chestnut street, Brattleboro, Vt., says: "For a year of more I was subject to pains in my back which were always worse at night. As a consequence I arose in the morning feeling lame and sore and tired out generally on account of being deprived of my rest and sleep. Lifting, stooping or any extra strain on the muscles of the back were sure to bring twinges of pain. I tried many remedies but met with indifferent success until I went to F. H. Holden's drug store and got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I soon found they were helping me, and after using two boxes the pain entirely disappeared and my back was stronger. I could enjoy my night's sleep and arise in the morning feeling refresh-
